

Women Helping Women

Founded in 1975 through collaboration between the Rutgers Mental Health Center and the National Council of Jewish Women in response to the changing needs in their community. WHW, through the years, pioneered a therapeutic self-help approach that includes individual and group counseling; established Middlesex County's only battered women's shelter; been in the forefront of developing programs to help women, children and families deal with physical, sexual and emotional abuse; relationships, divorce, loss; self-esteem, peer pressure and addiction; bloom from a short term crisis counseling service to the comprehensive therapeutic and support service center it is today offering individual counseling, therapy groups, telephone Help-Line, community education workshops, outreach programs and legal clinics. Our innovative Strong Girls workshops provide young women with an invaluable opportunity to build self-esteem enhance communication skills and understand and manage feelings. Women Helping Women is a recipient of the New Jersey Division on Women Best Program Award.
